“Social Costructivism”

Constructivism asserts that learning is particularly effective when constructing something for others to experience

The concept of social constructivism extends the above ideas into a social group constructing things for one another, collaboratively creating a small culture of shared artifacts with shared meanings. When one is immersed within a culture like this, one is learning all the time about how to be a part of that culture, on many levels

Clinical legal education

Clinical legal education is a legal teaching method based on experiential learning, which fosters the growth of knowledge, personal skills and values as well as promoting social justice at the same time. As a broad term, it encompasses varieties of formal, non-formal and informal educational programs and projects, which use practical-oriented, student-centered, problem-based, interactive learning methods, including, but not limited to, the practical work of students on real cases and social issues supervised by academics and professionals. These educational activities aim to develop professional attitudes and foster the growth of the practical skills of students with regard to the modern understanding of the role of the socially oriented professional in promoting the rule of law, providing access to justice and peaceful conflict resolutions, and solving social problems (v. ENCLE).

LEGAL CLINICS COURSES - General Information

This teaching aims at addressing individuals, organizations, local entities that needs qualified legal assistance but cannot afford the costs. The areas where the Legal Clinics intend to operate are of significant social importance: education, environment, immigration, consumer protection, social disadvantages

The teaching has a multidisciplinary approach. Several other teachings are involved: private law, comparative law, international law, administrative law, EU Law, criminal law, family law, civil procedure, labor and antidiscrimination law.

Therefore, this teaching is mainly based on legal assistance of real cases, under the liability of Lawyers belonging to the Bar, and under the supervision of the Teacher in charge of the course. In particular, the activity of students is very complex, and may take place in several places. Some activities concerning the legal assistance are developed, under the teacher's supervision, within the Department of Law (analysis of cases, common activities). Some others shall necessarily take place within the legal premises of the lawyer responsible of the case. Some other activities shall be developed within the judiciary premises.

The work of the students shall be directed through the following steps:

- cases shall be assigned to different groups of students (no more than 5- 7 students per case), under the teacher's and a tutor's supervision;
- meeting with the clients aiming at providing students with specific abilities, first of all how to approach the client;
- the work with a client shall start by meeting him/her, usually within the lawyers' premises. Students shall interview clients under the lawyer's supervision.
- Several meetings with the supervisors shall take place within the Department's premises in order to prepare the cases. During this step the strategic litigation is faced by students, who are assigned specific task to be developed. Simulation activities may take place;
- At the end of strategic study students shall prepare the legal act;
- Rounds shall take place, that is meetings during which all the students of different groups shall meet in order to discuss the main legal issues raised by the cases faced by each group.
- Common activities to all groups shall occur, consisting of seminars, academic lessons or other activities focusing on specific issues (role of the judge and the lawyers, mediation, negotiation).
